ARTHUR D. JENKINS

December 14, 1951

Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith The Pentagor Washington D. C.

Dear General Smith:

Some time ago, someone told me that once upon a time you attended Grade School No. 10 in Indianapolis on the corner of Ashland Avenue.

The writer was an alumnus of that school, having lived at 916, or 1015, or somehwere along there on College Avenue, and his memories of that period recall an old medical school across the street to the north of No. 10.

During the period when I was a student, the medical school was being dismanteled and we youngsters used to sneak away to examine the abandoned exhibit against the wishes of hiss Thitsett, hiss Randall, and the principal, hiss Ray.

I wonder, General, if any of these recollections ring a bell anywhere and if you remember or recall this period.

merely yours

Arthur D. Jenkins

ភ្នំស្លា:mlc